Marxism and The Basics

By Robert Paul Resche

I. History and Historical Materialism

First there is the mode of production and many wills which then organize into classes and class power. I also mean it is then in fact classes, masses and popular classes which have a state to fight against.

II. Poulantzas

I now organize this into a power, a popular class power and even an effect of isolation of an individual who then realizes his class wide relations and class consciousness and becomes a free person.

III. Sartre

I also mean that class individual and that mass trade union and peasant organizer force is then a leader who is an intellectual and is only a Marxist.

“Is it simple to be a Marxist”

- Louis Althusser.

IV. The Simple Meaning of Life

To be a Marxist then and work for the poorest people and then advance to intellectual life is all life means for Communist Party people. We are all about the mass process.
